

1/11/17 – Irene Rocha Tailor

Right on Main Street in downtown Danbury is a local store that provides the perfect fit of dress for women on the most important days of their lives... and so much more! Irene Rocha is the founder and CEO of Irene Rocha Tailor, a multipurpose tailoring shop and business that can alter all bridal wear, formal wear, prom gowns, coats, jackets, blazers, you name it! They even perform general repairs to curtains, sheets, etc. Appointments can be made to tailor nearly everything.

Irene learned the art of tailoring in Brazil. When she came to the United States, she started tailoring in local dry-cleaning businesses and now is an award-winning tailor who has built a great reputation right here with her clients in Danbury. Her work has is well known not only to our humble city, but Irene is recommended across the country.

Irene's well-established name is thanks to her experience and attention to detail. Just read some of the great things people have to say about her in the local community as well as excellent reviews by some very high profile clients. In 2013, Irene provided what ended up being almost a complete rebuild to the dress worn by Erin Brady who won the Miss America Pageant. Erin is one of many pageant contestants that Irene has served over the years.

Whether you have a wedding, prom, quinceañera or just an upcoming night out, having a perfectly-tailored dress is necessary to look and feel your best at your event. And Irene Rocha is certainly well qualified for the job! Find out more by getting in contact with Irene Rocha Tailor!
